

I am against a small number of large interests controlling any form of media. Not only will it limit genuine American artists access to the airwaves, it will limit debate and dialogue, the very thread of our heritage. American freedom is first and foremost. Big business, while important, must be second to our right of expression.